

Press Release

28/2013

Going Home

GEOMAR scientists found evidence why female loggerhead sea turtles always return to their place of birth

30 May 2013/Kiel. Marine turtles are among the most endangered species of the world ocean. For a better protection of these fascinating animals, scientists try to understand why turtles return to their birthplace in order to reproduce after rather long distance migrations. Using molecular tools applied to turtles from the Cape Verde islands, scientists from

